

Board Summary

December 4, 2025 Board Meeting

The Utah State Board of Education:

- Reviewed and discussed statutory change requests in preparation for the upcoming legislative session.
- Received a report on the results of a federal funding performance audit conducted by GPP Analytics.
- Approved a special education add-on waiver for new and expanding charter schools.

Board Approved Statutory Change Requests

The Utah State Board of Education reviewed and approved statutory change requests for the 2026 legislative session, directing staff to work with lawmakers on potential amendments to Utah Code. Statutory requests are technical policy changes the Board identifies each year to clarify outdated language, remove duplicative or ineffective requirements, reduce burdens on schools, or improve the administration of statewide programs. This year's recommendations include proposed code changes intended to streamline requirements and improve program administration. Key requests this year include repealing the Early Learning Plan and Math Plan statutes — both found to add burden without improving student outcomes — and clarifying statewide guidelines related to the use of seclusion rooms and emergency safety interventions. The Board approved an additional statutory change request during its Thursday meeting to remove an outdated reading program and amend code surrounding the first credential pathway to add clarity. The full list of statutory requests can be found here.

Board Receives Report on Results of Federal Funding Performance Audit

The Utah State Board of Education (USBE) received a presentation from GPP Analytics on the results of a performance audit of USBE's federal funding and associated compliance costs. The audit was conducted under U.S. Government Accountability Office standards and examined federal funds received and the state-level costs required to administer and comply with federal programs across FY 2022–23, FY 2023–24, and FY 2024–25. Unlike a financial audit, this performance audit focused on the efficiency of processes, the full cost structure of federal program administration, and whether systems are functioning as intended.

The auditors reported that while USBE maintains strong internal controls, transparent practices, and administrative overhead levels that are broadly consistent with, or lower than, peer state education agencies, Utah continues to absorb an estimated $8–$12 million in state-funded ancillary support costs each year that are not recovered. This represents roughly 2 percent of appropriated federal sources for FY 2024–25. The analysis itemized 17 categories of state-funded compliance and administrative activities and confirmed that some costs of meeting federal requirements, such as reporting, monitoring, oversight, and cross-agency coordination, extend beyond what federal reimbursement covers. The Board received the report for review and discussion regarding next steps.

Board Approves Special Education Add-on Waiver for New and Expanding Charter Schools

The Utah State Board of Education approved a waiver of R277-479-3\(1\) for FY 2026 to ensure new and expanding charter schools do not receive reduced special education allocations due to implementation issues in the current rule. Past allocations have been based on statewide averages without a long-term true-up mechanism, resulting in funding misalignments over time. The waiver provides short-term stability while staff and a stakeholder working group continue developing a revised formula to address the structural issues and establish an accurate, sustainable approach going forward.

Board Approves Child Sexual Abuse and Human Trafficking Instructional Materials

The Utah State Board of Education approved eight curriculum sets following its review in the Fall 2025 Recommended Instructional Materials System (RIMS) cycle. Under 53G-9-207, instructional materials for child sexual abuse and human trafficking prevention must receive Board approval before use in schools. The curriculum was evaluated by the designated review committee to ensure it met all required guidelines, and USBE prevention staff recommended it to the Board for approval.

Board Approves CTE Course Standards

The Utah State Board of Education approved an update to the Career and Technical Education (CTE) course standards. These standards are part of the Board's regular multi-year CTE course revision cycle, through which roughly one-fourth of CTE courses are reviewed and updated each year. The revisions were developed with input from subject-matter experts and business and industry partners and reflect the Board-approved process for updating non-core elective courses.
